(3) Resident branch offices of non-resident entrepreneurs are liable to pay profit tax. Entrepreneurs whose residence and head office are not located in the Republic of Croatia are considered as non-resident entrepreneurs.

(6) An entrepreneur who is a natural person is liable to pay profit tax, if:

1. his total revenue in the preceding calendar year was in excess of 500,000 DM in Croatian dinars; or
2. his income in the preceding calendar year was in excess of 75,000 DM in Croatian dinars; or

(7) If several persons jointly engage in a business activity, their liability to pay profit tax is computed pursuant to conditions stipulated in Items 1 to 4 of the preceding Paragraph, for the entire business.

(8) The profit tax liability and the obligation to keep business books in accordance with the legislation on accountancy procedures of the entrepreneur specified in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of this Article commences at the beginning of the business year following the ruling of the Tax Administration on profit tax liability. The liabilities and obligations expire at the end of the business year in which the Tax Administration rules that the profit tax liability and the obligation to keep business books in accordance with the legislation on accountancy procedures no longer apply.

(9) Institutions, in the sense of this Act, are not liable to pay profit tax if they engage in the activities for which they have been founded. Likewise, non-profit organisations and similar legal entities are not liable to pay profit tax, in the sense of this Act, unless they have been established for the purpose of gaining profit.

(10) If institutions or non-profit organisations and other similar legal entities engage in other activities from which they gain profit, they become liable to pay profit tax for these activities.

2. Taxable Base

Article 3

(2) The taxable base for the computation of profit tax is profit gained in Croatia and abroad.

(3) The taxable base for resident branch offices of non-resident entrepreneurs is the profit gained in Croatia.

(4) Profit gained from liquidation, sale, change of legal status and partition of the taxpayer also enters the taxable base.

(5) The assessed amount of profit tax is not deducted from the taxable base for profit tax.

(6) Equity, in the sense of Paragraph 1 of this Article is the net value of the property, calculated by subtracting liabilities from assets.
Article 4

(1) The taxable base defined in Article 3 of this Act is reduced by the receipts and entries arising from shares and dividends and by profit from disposing of shares.

(2) The term “payment” as used in Paragraph 1 of this Article includes payments made pursuant to internal regulations of the taxpayer on profit sharing (public) and other (hidden) payouts of the profit. Among the expenses subject to the audit are the costs of purchase of goods and services, management, consulting, registered trade marks, patents, licenses, loans and other compensations or investments which may be a kind of profit transfer operation.

(4) If the Tax Administration considers that these transactions are part of clandestine profit transfer operations, the balance of acquisition prices and average market prices on the domestic or foreign market will be added. to the taxable profit of the resident section of the non-resident entrepreneur.

Article 7

(1) Protective interest is deducted from the taxable base defined in Article 3 of this Act.

(2) The protective interest referred to in Paragraph 1 of this Article is obtained by calculating interest on equity using the protective interest rate defined in Article 9 of this Act.

1. from which the book value of shares with other taxpayers at the beginning of the tax period has been deducted, and

2. from which the book value of the shares with other taxpayers acquired or disposed during the tax period has been deducted or added, respectively.

(3) If a taxpayer is liquidated, profit or loss are calculated for the liquidation period, which begins at the end of the previous business year. The initial balance sheet for the liquidation period shows the assets of the taxpayer in the balance sheet at the end of the previous business year. If such a balance sheet does not exist, the items are subject to an estimate. The final balance for the liquidation period shows the assets to be divided, liquidation profit or liquidation loss.
